

Are you under 35
and in the metal recycling industry?

Why
join?

The BMRA actively want to engage with the young professionals in the metal recycling industry in order to meet their professional and developmental needs. Not only is it important for the BMRA to support young professionals, it is important for young professionals to support and guide each other.

The BMRA are looking for young people to join a forum to learn new things, support peers, share knowledge and to meet others who are also developing their career in this specialised sector.

The Young British Metal Recyclers (YBMR) will:

- Form coherent opinions on relevant policy issues and report to the BMRA Board, via the Legislative Policy Group.
- Encourage participation in BMRA and YBMR activities by industry colleagues under the age of 35.
- Promote communication and learning between members of the YBMR through electronic means, including social media and more traditional methods.
- Identify purposeful and educational activities that may assist members of the YBMR in their own careers.
- Promote networking opportunities between members of the YBMR and the wider metals industry, within the clear bounds of competition compliance.

Want to learn more about what we do and how to get involved?
Give us a call, drop us an email or write to us on actual paper if you really must! Details below.
